Audio Before and After Editing

If you listen to the original recording, you will hear clicks, room tone, sound that was recorded both near and far away from the microphone, and sibilance. This is the original recording. I will now play the recording after all of the editing was completed. There is a major difference between the two audio files. This is an example of how audio can be improved for use in an online course or to improve audio recordings of interviews.